

ISSUE OF WHIPPING IN SCHOOLS RAISED IN NALLEY CASE

Conflict Between Educators and Juvenile Court on Question.

The announcement that Mrs. Anne Nalley, mother of Joseph Nalley, twelve years old, who was whipped by his teacher, Mrs. Margaret N. Bridges and Robert Boyle, a janitor, will ask for a warrant against the two involved on charges of assault, raises the question of the right of a teacher to inflict corporal punishment on a child.

The conflict between the school authorities and the Juvenile Court appears to have resolved itself into a question of who shall do the whipping. The handbook of the Board of Education states under the subhead, "Corporal Punishment to be Avoided," that "The avoidance of corporal punishment, as far as may be, with a due regard to obedience on the part of the pupils, is enjoined on all teachers. Each case of corporal punishment, with the reason therefor, shall be reported promptly through the principal to the supervising principal to the superintendent."

Judge William H. De Lacy, of the Juvenile Court, advocates the methods employed by the probation officers, who recommend to parents cases where whipping is thought necessary. No whipping is done except on the court's suggestion. Whipping by a teacher is held to be barbaric and medieval by Judge De Lacy. Superintendent Davidson, on the other hand, holds that corporal punishment is necessary for school discipline, with the idea of reducing the number of cases to a minimum.

In the Nalley case, the boy has been assigned to a school for children who are backward, incorrigible, or are known as habitual truants, whose parents cannot make them attend school, and have surrendered them for corrective influences.

There are six such schools in the District, and exceptional teachers in this phase of child welfare work have been selected.

CHURCHES PREPARE FOR PALM SUNDAY

Blessing of Palms at St. Patrick's at Eleven o'Clock Services.

Announcement of services on Palm Sunday were made today in the Roman Catholic and Protestant Episcopal churches of the city, which specially observe this Sunday. At St. Patrick's Church it was announced that the blessing of the palms will take place at 10:45 a. m., and that distribution will take place during the 11 o'clock mass.

The Very Rev. William T. Russell celebrated high mass at St. Patrick's today and the sermon was preached by the Rev. John M. McNamara on the topic, "The Catholic Church as the Refuge of Sinners."

After referring to the parable of the Prodigal Son, Father McNamara said: "The parable expresses the attitude of Christ toward sinners, and the attitude of Christ is the attitude of His representative on earth, the Catholic Church. The policy of the church is expressed in the words, 'Though your sins be as scarlet yet they shall be forgiven you,' and in the phrase, 'While there is life there is hope.'"

Monsignor Russell will preach at the Lenten devotion at 7:30 tonight on the theme, "Jesus, Peter and Judas." The Rev. James A. Smyth will preach at the Wednesday evening service.

Rev. Walter W. Reid to Be Ordained Tomorrow

The Rev. Walter W. Reid, a deacon of the Episcopal church, is to be ordained a priest tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock by Bishop Harding, at the Little Sanctuary, on Mount Albion. The day and place were chosen because it is the anniversary of the congregation of the late Bishop Satterlee, whose body is temporarily interred before the Jerusalem altar in the Sanctuary.

The Rev. Mr. Reid was formerly curate of St. Thomas' Church of this city. Following his ordination he leaves Washington to become rector of Grace Church at Shelburne, Vt., under Bishop A. C. A. Hall. Tomorrow, the day chosen for the ordination, is the feast of the annunciation of the Virgin.

REAL MAINE RAISER UNABLE TO BE HERE

Alfred King, Who Spent Fourteen Years and His Fortune in Trying to Salvage the Hulk, Misses Last Rites.

Alfred King, of Arlington, N. J., did not witness the splendid services over the unknown sailors taken from the hulk of the Maine. Yet Alfred King, a veteran of the civil war and a poor man, is more than any other man, unless it is Congressman Sulzer, responsible for raising the Maine, determining the course of the fatal explosion and giving decent burial to the martyred sailors.

Only day before yesterday Congressman Sulzer received a letter from King, saying he would be unable to come to Washington to see the termination of a ten years' fight. King spent all his money in raising sentiment in favor of raising the Maine and burying her dead. Friday night Congressman Phil Campbell of Kansas and a number of others tried to reach King but failed. They were willing to pay his expenses to Washington and receive him as their guest.

At the close of the Spanish-American war there was organized in Washington the U. S. Battleship Maine Salvage Company. This company sent alluring prospects to all parts of the country calling for contributions which were to be used in building a cofferdam around the vessel dried out, visitors, protected from the water of the harbor of Havana by the cofferdam, were to be permitted to enter the Maine. A fee was to be charged, of course, and the profits promised were large. One of these pamphlets fell into King's hands. He went to work to have the Government save the Maine and to bury the dead. Without funds, without influence, without even a typewriter, King began writing newspaper articles and letters. He tried to interest New Jersey Congressmen but failed. About this time Congressman Sulzer took hold of the proposition. Sulzer's plan was regarded as so much hot air. Everyone was against him and against King. But both of them kept pounding away.

There was an Ohio Congressman who made scathing comment on Sulzer's plan. Sulzer replied, and he believes this reply, which was circulated through the Ohio's district, was the cause of his defeat. Anyway, the Ohio seer was not returned to Congress.

King and Sulzer continued the campaign. In the last ten years Sulzer has made upwards of a hundred speeches in favor of raising the Maine. King has written incessantly.

"I believe I have received a thousand letters from him," said Congressman Sulzer this morning. "Every one is written by hand, too."

So it comes about that after a ten years' fight, after creating public sentiment sufficient to force appropriations amounting to $550,000, after writing thousands of letters by hand, spending his every cent on postage, Alfred King raiser of the Maine, who lives at 581 Forest street, Arlington, N. J., was not in Washington yesterday to witness his success.

NO COAL TRUST HERE, SAYS OFFICIAL BUSTER

Acting Attorney General Fowler
Denies Government Plans Prosecutions.

No Coal trust exists in the United States within the knowledge of the Government trust busters.

Acting Attorney General Fowler, in charge of anti-trust work, emphatically denied today the published reports that the department was investigating or intended at this time to investigate an alleged Coal trust. "I do not know of any such investigation," he said. "And I do not know what they mean by a Coal trust."

It was pointed out that a Coal trust could not exist without the cooperation of the railroads, and that this was utterly impossible with the Interstate Commerce Commission regulating the rates of the roads of the country and continually on the lookout for agreements between coal operators and railroad officials.

Mr. Fowler said "Inspector Dewdney in Chicago has not received orders through this office to make any such investigation."

CARPENTERS COMING TO ATTEND MEETING

More Than 1,200 Members of Union Expected Here in September.

Frank Duffy, secretary of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, is in Washington arranging with Thomas Grant, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and the convention committee of the local carpenters' union, No. 123, for the national convention to be held here in September. Secretary Duffy believes that 1,200 delegates will attend the session.

The program includes a grand parade of all the union employees in Washington on the opening day of the convention, trips to the proving grounds at Indian Head, Mt. Vernon, and Baltimore, and a trip down Chesapeake Bay.

The convention was obtained for Washington this year only after a struggle with several competing Western cities. E. B. Byrne, chairman of the local committee, believes this will be one of the largest conventions held in Washington for some time.

MURDERS IN DISTRICT ARE ON THE INCREASE

Twenty-one Persons' Have Already Been Killed During First Nine Months.

Twenty-one murders have been committed in the District of Columbia during the first nine months of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912. This is one more than was committed during the entire year ended June 30, 1911. During the fiscal year 1909-1910 there were only eleven murders.

So far this year there has been an average of a little more than two homicides a month. Two of the murders this year will go down in the records of the Police Department as unsolved mysteries. They are the killing of William H. Mickle, the Seventh street tobacconist, and Sam Hing, the Chinese laundryman. Both men were beaten to death and robbed in their places of business, and the crimes bore considerable resemblance to each other, but the police do not believe they were committed by the same person.

NEW COMMITTEE TO RAISE NEEDED FUNDS

Effort to Be Made to Get $250,000 for Convention Hall.

Mrs. Henry F. Dimock, president of the George Washington Memorial Association, is preparing to organize an auxiliary committee, the work of which will be to raise the remaining part of Washington's yet unsubscribed allotment of $250,000, to be used in erecting in Washington a convention-memorial hall. The committee organized some time ago, and which worked under the supervision of the Chamber of Commerce, has turned in its resignation, which has been accepted. Mrs. Dimock has announced that immediately the work of this committee will be taken up by a new one, and every effort made to have the allotted amount raised.

The original committee, it is said, found that Washington business men did respond as readily to the call for cash as had been expected. For this reason the members decided to turn the work over to others.
